

Motivation -

Meaning - Motivation is a transitive form of the noun

Motive.

Motive is derived from the latin word, "Movere" which means "to move" or to "energize" or to activate".

"Motivation is the act or process by which the needs and desires of a person move him towards some action or,

"Motivation is a kind of internal energy which drives a person to do something in order to achieve something.

"Stephen P Robbins" - The willingness to exert high levels of effort towards organisational goals, conditions by the effort's ability to satisfy some individual needs.

("The greatest motivational act one person can do for another is to listen" (Roy E. Moody))

"A great man is one who can make a small man feel great, and perform great!"

Example-

"Motivation is like an accelerator in a vehicle. A vehicle keeps moving at the place decided by its accelerator. The moment accelerator is reduced, vehicle's speed reduces and it may come to a stand still if there is no further acceleration. Alternatively, if brakes are applied, there will be an abrupt reduction in the speed of the vehicle and it may come to a stand still."
